

Parents, Teachers, Readers:

Adopt-a-Classroom and support News In Education.

Students at Sea Lab Marine Science Education Center in New Bedford.

What better way to prepare students for the real world than by giving them learning tools that are updated daily?

SouthCoast students are using The Standard-Times News in Education program to study and compare cultures by reading folktales, myths and legends from around the world. They are honing their geography, math, language arts and character education skills by following the NCAA basketball teams during March Mania. Many classes use the newspaper to study weather patterns locally and globally. NIE also helps students enhance their critical reading skills, become better consumers and develop a deeper awareness of the world around them. These programs and much more are available to SouthCoast classrooms at NO COST thanks to the generosity of local businesses and readers like you! The Standard-Times underwrites 75% of the cost of these educational programs and services.

You can sponsor a class for one month at one of the schools listed below, for as little as $25

As a token of our heartfelt appreciation, we will include your name in our "Adopt-a-Classroom" ad in The Standard-Times for the entire year.

(More than one sponsor per school is permitted.)
